ABSTRACT

This bibliography of child abuse and neglect resources was developed for use by school district administrative and educational staff to enhance their child abuse prevention programs or to assist in creating new programs. Some sections will also be useful in extending programs to the community. Citations are organized into four chapters. Chapter 1, Educational Programs for Students, includes curricula and curriculum aids for students in kindergarten through grade 12 and for special education students. Chapter 2, Information for School Staff, includes training, curriculum guides, and awareness materials for teachers, school administrators, and other school personnel. Chapter 3, Resources for the Community, includes items that schools can use for in-service involving parents and the community. A children's section within this chapter contains books for children from preschool age through adolescence. The final chapter, Additional Information: References, Resources and Organizations, provides school districts with information to enhance their existing child abuse programs or to obtain specialized resources. Each chapter is divided into subsections and materials within subsections are grouped into separate categories for child abuse and sexual abuse. Entries are listed alphabetically by title with the author, publisher, or organization included. Brief annotations and addresses are included whenever possible. All references are more recent than 1976. (NB)

FOREWORD

The need for a bibliography of child abuse and neglect materials and resources arose as a result of the activities of the Governor's Task Force on Child Abuse and Neglect, the Governor's Council on the Prevention of Mental Retardation, recent public awareness of large scale institutional incidents of child abuse, and interest expressed by teachers and administrators. In 1984, there were 44,638 reports of child abuse in New Jersey. These figures include both substantiated and unsubstantiated cases. In 1984, there were approximately 229 reported substantiated and unsubstantiated cases of institutional abuse in New Jersey public schools. These factors emphasize the need for this document.

CHILD ABUSE AND NEGLECT: A BIBLIOGRAPHY OF MATERIALS AND OTHER RESOURCES is aimed to help the entire educational community. School district administrative and educational staff can use this document to enhance their child abuse prevention programs or to assist in creating a new program. The section for community people and parents can be used by school districts that wish to extend their child abuse prevention programs to the larger educational community. Also, this section can be used separately by the community to develop their own programs and increase their awareness of child abuse.

The document is divided into four major chapters with subsections. Within each subsection, materials are grouped into separate categories for child abuse and sexual abuse. Each chapter contains entries by title with the author, publisher or organization and in some cases, addresses. Where information is known about the entry, a brief annotation and date of publication are given. All of the entries have been developed within the last ten years.

The four chapters are as follows:

1. EDUCATIONAL PROGRAMS FOR STUDENTS includes curricula and curriculum aids for students in grades K-12, elementary and secondary. In addition, there is a section for special education students.

2. INFORMATION FOR SCHOOL STAFF includes materials for teachers, school administrators and others including the school nurse, social worker or guidance counselor. The information covers training, curriculum guides and awareness materials.

3. RESOURCES FOR THE COMMUNITY includes items that the school can use for in-service involving parents and the entire community. The children's section contains books for preschool to adolescent children which they can read or their parents can read to them. Also, a list of items is provided for children and adult victims of abuse.

4. The last chapter, ADDITIONAL INFORMATION: REFERENCES, RESOURCES AND ORGANIZATIONS, is included to provide school districts with information to enhance their existing child abuse programs or to obtain specialized resources. National resources are comprised only of assistance organizations for victims, while the other organizations include prevention advocacy groups.

Schools and families have the potential to eliminate child abuse. This document is intended to enhance school districts' efforts to reduce and prevent the abuse of children in New Jersey.
